

Sanders & Stayman Co., 1327 F Street.

THE HOME OF THE WORLD FAMOUS

Weber Piano

This wonderful Piano, of the richest, fullest, yet most sympathetic tone, has stood the test for threescore years.

We are selling double the number ever sold before, which proves that they are growing in favor as the years go by.

We will take your old piano, of whatever make, in exchange at full value.

A Beautiful Model of the Weber
Can be Had for $500.

EASY TERMS IF DESIRED.

Sanders & Stayman Co., 1327 F Street.

TO-DAY IN HISTORY.

Felix Mendelssohn—November 4.

On November 4, 1847, Felix Mendelssohn, one of the greatest of all musical composers, died at Leipzig. Considering the great amount of work he accomplished, it seems little less than marvelous, when considering that he was only thirty-eight years old at the time his life's work was brought to a close. But most musicians and composers begin early, and Felix was only seven years of age when he was placed under instruction by an experienced teacher, his mother having given him his preliminary knowledge of the art. He made his first appearance in public at the age of nine, and at twelve he began to compose regularly. Aside from the immense amount of work he accomplished as musical director, at his death he left behind him close to 200 works, many of them of great length.

It was this hard and constant work that was responsible for Mendelssohn's death at the age when most men are in the prime of life. When he had returned from his summer vacation in September of 1847, his friends found him to their surprise, that it had given him no benefit. He looked aged, pale, and weary. He complained of the oppressive air of the city. He grew gradually weaker, relapsed into unconsciousness on November 3, and died the following day.

The great regard in which Mendelssohn was held is shown in the fact that during his last illness, the public feeling was intense. Burial services were held in the city hall, and the streets were thronged with people who came to pay their last respects to the great composer.

"It is lovely weather here," wrote a young English student to the York Courant, "but an awful stillness prevails. We feel as if the King were dead. Clusters of people are seen speaking together on the streets." The streets were thronged with people who came to pay their last respects to the great composer.

"On November 4 was a Thursday, and on Friday and Saturday the public were allowed to see the body of the great composer. On Sunday, the 7th, it was taken to the Pauliner Church, at Leipzig. A band preceded the hearse, playing the 'Song Without Words,' in E minor, instrumented by Moscheles; and after this came a student of the Conservatorium with a cushion, on which lay a silver crown, formerly presented to Mendelssohn by his pupils, and his order 'pour le mérite.'"

"The pall was borne by Moscheles, David Hauptmann, and Gade; the professors and pupils of the conservatorium, the members of the Gewandhaus Orchestra, the chief functionaries of the corporation and the university, and several guilds and societies. In the church, the members from his oratorio, 'St. Paul,' were sung, the sermon was preached by Herr Howard, the pastor, and the service closed with the concluding chorus of Bach's 'St. Matthew Passion.'"

"At 10 p. m. the coffin was conveyed to the Leipzig station and transported by rail to Berlin. The funeral party arrived at Berlin at 7 o'clock the following morning, and after more funeral ceremonies, the body was buried in the cemetery of the New Church at 10 o'clock.

ARE YOU SLEEPY? NERVOUS? ? TIRED ?

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

IT WILL WAKEN
UP YOUR LIVER
and start it working. Then you can work, and enjoy it, too.

THE GENUINE has the RED Z on the front of each package and signature and seal of J. H. ZEILIN
& CO. on the side, in red.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Effort Made to Recover $307,000, the Amount of Defalcation.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3.—Former Gov. John L. Bates, receiver of the National City Bank of Cambridge, filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court to-day in equity to recover $307,000, which was the amount of default discovered when the bank was looted by George W. Coleman, a $12-a-week clerk.

President Edwin Dresser, of Cambridge, and Directors David A. Barber, of Cambridge, and George W. Gale and Sumner Dresser, of Wellesley, are charged with negligence in not properly supervising the accounts and money of the bank.

It is sought to recover the money lost in the defalcation from the bank officers named.

ENGLISH LEADERS

FOR CLOSER UNION

Convention Next Year Will Consider Federation.

LISTEN TO IRELAND'S PLAIN

Majority of Home Rulers Will Welcome the Disunion-Agreement Now Near at Hand Will End Controversy Which Two Years Ago Threatened a Rupture.

London, Nov. 3.—It may now be announced on the best authority that the conference of the leaders of the government and of the opposition to consider the question of the House of Lords will result in holding a broad constitutional convention next year, which will deal with the whole subject of the federation of the British empire.

This degree of understanding among the leaders has been reached during the past three weeks, where a month ago past agreement seemed possible. Its explanation is the remarkable growth in favor of the federation idea among political men of all classes.

Ireland the Stumbling Block.

Ireland, of course, was the chief stumbling block. It was found that even the most radical members of the government, including Winston Churchill and Mr. Lloyd-George, were strongly opposed to giving Ireland the degree of independence possessed by Canada and Australia. They were willing to concede to her similar relations to the imperial government as Ohio to Washington, or Ontario to the Dominion of Canada. The Unionist leaders are ready to compromise on the Irish question on that basis.

The details of the federal government for Scotland, Wales, and England must be worked out next year at the convention. Meantime constitutional questions will be left in abeyance in Parliament, and by mutual agreement between both parties Mr. Redmond will be deprived of all power to embarrass the government, the Unionists, if necessary voting with the cabinet.

Redmond's Position Not Known.

Mr. Redmond has vacillated so frequently since he has been in America that his real position is not yet understood here by anybody, but according to a dispatch from Albany, published in to-day's papers, he demands home rule similar to that enjoyed by the independent colonies. Should he attempt to press this demand when Parliament re-assembles, he will meet the combined opposition of the Liberals and Unionists. Mr. O'Connor, according to the latest dispatches, favors the milder home rule enjoyed by the individual States of America. There is growing evidence that the masses of Irish home rulers will welcome such a concession. Public opinion as a whole in this country will receive the announcement of the proposed solution of the constitutional crisis with general satisfaction. It will be officially made public soon after Parliament meets.

GIRL IN DISGUISE WEDDED.

Man Who Had Roomed with Her Takes Her as Bride.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Miss Margaret Patrick, a seventeen-year-old Coscobeth girl, who was arrested after posing in men's clothes for three months, was married at the police station to W. P. Colmer, aged twenty-two, employed by the Bell Telephone Company, with whom she had roomed for the past month.

Dressed as a boy and under the name of Robert Doyle, she obtained employment as a messenger boy with the Bell Telephone Company, and later as a news agent on the Lake Shore.

URNS ON PROPHECY.

Rich Bride Never Comes, So He Appeals to the Police.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—"A dark-complexioned woman, worth about $30,000, is crazy about you. You will marry her in two weeks," Mrs. Marie Alwes, a fortune-teller, is said to have told Anton Wozny in return for the munificent fee of 25 cents. Wozny, his investment constantly in mind, waited until he caused the fortune-teller's arrest.

"She cheated me," Wozny told the police. "I waited for the woman with the money, but she never came. Now I will have revenge, and I want my money back."

QUITS MOLESTING CONSULS.

Gen. Jose Valladares, of Honduras, Promises to Be Good.

Gen. Jose Maria Valladares, commander of the port of Amapala, on the west coast of Honduras, who declined to be dismissed from office by President Davila, of Honduras, has promised to be good and not to molest the foreign consuls again.

Commander Charles H. Hayes, U. S. N., commanding the gunboat Princeton, has advised the Navy Department that Gen. Valladares promised him not to make any more trouble. The Princeton will remain there, however, in spite of Gen. Valladares' promised reformation.

Martial law has been declared, and the port has been closed. It is likely that force will be used to compel Gen. Valladares to give up his post.

Sues Chanler for Roses.

New York, Nov. 3.—Robert W. Chanler has been sued by Charles Thorley, a Fifth avenue florist, for $30 worth of roses which he bought in October, 1909, for Linx Cavalieri. William Ferguson, an attorney, is looking for Chanler to serve him with the papers in the suit.

How to Get Rid of Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and It Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who for over thirty-six years has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, saline, cream, or inhaler, but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It checks out the head, nose, throat, and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without stopping up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the constant blowing of nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. J. W. Blosser, 291 Walnut street, Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you by return mail enough of the medicine to satisfy you of its efficacy. It is a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds, and all catarrhal complications. He will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write him immediately.

The House of Ill-luck

By BLANCHE EARDLEY.

SYNOPSIS.

Rosemary Fenchester, a poor but well-bred and beautiful orphan, is lured into a secret marriage with a supposed dying man by a band of plotters who need proof of a marriage for one of their schemes. She discovers that she has been duped and freed from the house, quickly losing herself in a deep London fog. Then she narrowly escapes being run down by a motor bus and faints. When she awakes she finds that her own bag has been stolen and that of a Miss French, who was killed by the bus.

To escape the consequences of the secret marriage Rosemary does not reveal the substitution of the bags. She finds a note making an appointment for Miss French to assume a position as companion to Lady Mallaby at Luck House, in Cornwall. Assuming the name of French, Rosemary secures the position, and becomes a favorite with Lady Mallaby and her son, Sir Douglas.

CHAPTER VII.

The Secret of the Tower.

The days at Luck House passed very quietly for Rosemary—so quietly that the girl began to feel that she had never had any previous existence. She saw Lady Mallaby a little more frequently than at first, though there were days when the mistress of Luck House seemed to disappear into a vault-like silence, broken at night by those strange cries that had first sent the girl's blood to her brain with horror. She had asked Keziah about them, only to be told with curt white lips that she must have been dreaming, and that no one else ever complained of hearing noises.

The only ray of light that penetrated the gloom that hung over Luck House was the presence of Sir Douglas, and, though Rosemary saw very little of him, it made her glad to hear him whistling in his fox terrier, Chips, or to hear his first step beneath the windows of the house.

As she went up beneath the windows of Lady Mallaby's boudoir, where she would sit and read to the old lady. One day, however, she was going downstairs to perform her usual task when she was met by Keziah, who told her that Lady Mallaby would not require her that day, as she was staying in bed. Knowing that the old servant objected to being questioned, Rosemary did not detain her, but when Keziah had disappeared downstairs she determined to seek out Lady Mallaby and ask to be allowed to nurse her, as she had had some little experience when nursing her father in his last illness. Suddenly she remembered that she had never been to Lady Mallaby's bedroom, and had no idea in what part of the house it was, though it must be one of the front rooms. But the rooms on the first floor were empty, and, after a fruitless search in others, Rosemary gave it up, as she was afraid to ring the bell for Keziah.

As she went up beneath the windows of the house to look for the door leading to the rooms, she came to go out on to a walk she came face to face with a girl of about fifteen, who was busily engaged washing the stair-carpets on the third floor staircase.

"Are you a new housemaid?" Rosemary asked smilingly.

"No, miss. I'm staying 'ere with Aunt Keziah," the girl murmured, blushing with the effort of speaking to a "real lady."

"Then you know Luck House very well?" Rosemary said. "I wonder can you tell me in which part of the house Lady Mallaby's bedroom is. I can't find it anywhere."

"Her ladyship's bedroom?" The girl's eyes expanded with an expression of terror. "No, miss, I don't know. I don't know," she stammered, growing crimson with confusion.

"I see," Rosemary said with a smile, and as she passed on to her room she remembered that she had had made the girl so frightened to speak.

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

"I am certain she did know," she murmured; "but if Keziah has forbidden her to speak to any one it is not fair to the girl. I will look for her either side of her, and I will find some one to talk to."

BLACKISTONE'S SPECIAL SPRAY

JUST $2.

This Special Spray is made up of Carnations, Roses, or other seasonal flowers. It is artistic, beautiful, appropriate. Phone for the Blackistone Special Spray—M. 3707.

Blackistone The Floral Artist, 14th and H Sts.

ADVERTISING TALKS.

WRITTEN BY WILLIAM C. FREEMAN.

Managers of railroads might say:

"Our road runs from New York to Chicago—or from St. Louis to California, or from New York to New Orleans. People know of its existence, and if they wish to travel all they need to do is to buy a ticket and arrange to take any train that is run over the road to the point they want to reach. Manufacturers know we carry freight and we will send freight to any point along the line of the road. Why should we advertise?"

Don't you know of some merchants who say:

"We are on a fine street—we have a fine store—people know us—thousands of people pass by here every day, and if they want to buy they will come into our store without our advertising."

NO BUSINESS IS SO WELL KNOWN IN THESE DAYS THAT IT CAN AFFORD TO DO WITHOUT ADVERTISING.

Railroad managers are shrewd enough to depart from the old method of time table advertising and get down to brass tacks, giving the public FACTS, and merchants who are succeeding are doing the same thing.

What Mr. Lynch says is absolutely true. ADVERTISERS MUST PRINT THE TRUTH AND MUST BE WILLING TO BE HELD ACCOUNTABLE to the public for what they say in their advertisements.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND ILL.

Unable to Help Republicans in Bay State Campaign.

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 3.—John Hays Hammond is ill at his summer home, Lookout Hill, Freshwater Cove. While his friends are not apprehensive, it is known that his physicians have prescribed absolute quiet for a time. This is the reason for his nonappearance at city hall last night, where he was scheduled for a speech at the Republican rally. While nothing serious is anticipated, it is evident that Mr. Hammond will have to slow down for a time at least.

Mrs. Hammond and the family are at Lookout Hill, where they plan to remain well into the Thanksgiving season before moving to their winter residence at Washington.

When President Taft left for New York City two weeks ago Mr. Hammond was to accompany him, but was reluctantly obliged to forego this journey at the last moment. Mr. Hammond has been an exceptionally busy man during the summer, and has been in connection with his work as the head and president of the League of Young Men's Republican Clubs having so fully taken up his time and energy as to overlook his health.

Handsome House Burned.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 3.—The beautiful home of Lewis Wood, about three miles from Culpeper, was consumed by fire to-night with most of its contents. It was one of the oldest and handsomest residences in the county. There was a slight insurance.

SENATOR CLAY ILL.

Georgian Not Expected to Live to End of His Term.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—United States Senator Stephen Clay, critically ill, was brought from his home at Marietta to-day and placed in an Atlanta sanatorium. It is said that the Senator's condition is desperate, and that there is little hope that he will recover.

The Senator has not been in good health for some years. There is much mystery about the nature of this illness, but it is generally believed that he is suffering from cancer of the stomach.

Should Senator Clay die his successor would be named by Gov. Joseph M. Brown, as the legislature will not meet till next June. It is said that in the event of Clay's death Gov. Brown will appoint ex-Gov. Joseph M. Terrell.

RHEUMATISM.

IT WILL CURE.

Get a 2-cent vial. If it fails to cure I will refund your money. Minton's, Phila.

MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 3.—The beautiful home of Lewis Wood, about three miles from Culpeper, was consumed by fire to-night with most of its contents. It was one of the oldest and handsomest residences in the county. There was a slight insurance.

Handsome House Burned.

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 3.—The beautiful home of Lewis Wood, about three miles from Culpeper, was consumed by fire to-night with most of its contents. It was one of the oldest and handsomest residences in the county. There was a slight insurance.